Report

On

Career Counselling Session

Introduction

On 3rd September 2024, the CCPC Cell and School of Computer Applications at Govt. College, Hamirpur, organized a career counselling session with Prof. Lavli Rana as the resource person. The session aimed to equip students with an understanding of the number systems used in computers, a foundational concept for anyone aspiring to a career in computer science or information technology.

Objectives

The primary objectives of the session were:

1. To introduce students to different number systems, including binary, octal, decimal, and hexadecimal systems.
2. To explain the significance of these number systems in computer applications and programming.
3. To enhance the students' computational thinking and problem-solving skills through practical examples.
4. To provide career insights into the role of understanding number systems in fields such as software development, data science, and IT infrastructure.

Conclusion

The session was highly informative and interactive, with Prof.Lavli Rana effectively breaking down complex topics into simple, understandable concepts. Students gained a deeper understanding of the number systems used in computer applications, which will be valuable in their academic and professional pursuits. Prof. Rana's insights into how these systems are applied in various industries also inspired many students to explore careers in computer science and related fields.
